

Your Pathway to a Smooth Return to Japan

Returning to Japan involves far more than packing your bags.
Our mission is to turn confusion into clarity - and anxiety into confidence.

KikokuPro

Introduction

When returning to Japan from the United States, what you need is more than just packing.

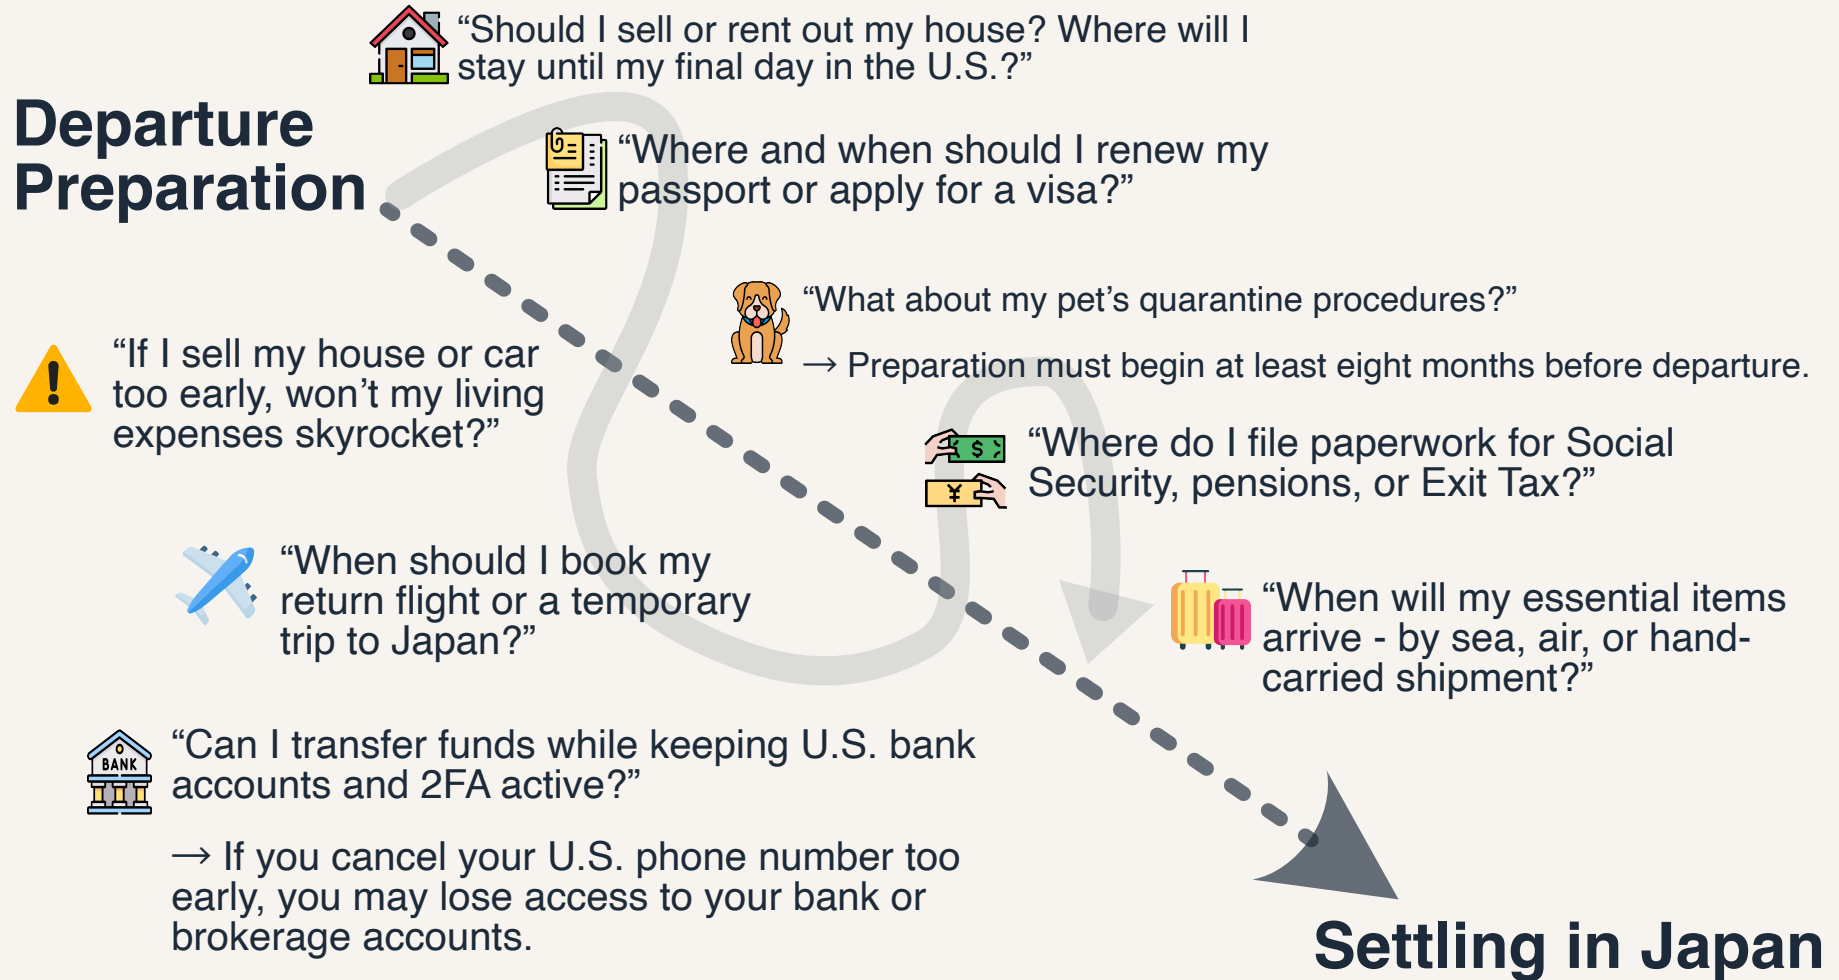

Legal procedures, taxation, real estate, pensions, healthcare, education, communications, and finance - every aspect of life is interconnected.

If even one of these steps is taken in the wrong order, it can result in significant loss of time and money.

That is the reality we want you to understand first.

At KikokuPro, we connect professionals across all fields to help you transform confusion into clarity.

Countless Decisions Along the Way

Trying to handle everything by yourself is simply unrealistic.

Organize and Schedule

“Where and when should I renew my passport or apply for a visa?”

“Should I sell or rent out my house? Where will I stay until my final day in the U.S.?”

“Can I transfer funds while keeping U.S. bank accounts and 2FA active?”

“Transferring your child and preparing certified translations of transcripts - what’s the best timing between school terms?”

“Social Security, pensions, insurance, and the Exit Tax - whom should you consult, and in what order?”

“Sea freight, air shipment, and unaccompanied baggage declaration - on which day will your essentials actually arrive?”

“Pet quarantine procedures must be planned backward from your return date - starting at least eight months in advance.”

There are countless small decisions to make
— and they all affect one another.

Common Mistakes and Their Costs

The order of tasks varies from person to person — templates don't work.

1. Selling a house or car too early

→ You may end up without a place to stay or means of transport during your final days, leading to higher living costs.

2. Canceling your U.S. phone number too soon

→ You may lose access to financial accounts due to broken two-factor authentication.

3. Errors in “Unaccompanied Baggage” declarations

→ Essential household goods fail to clear customs on time.

4. Delays in resident registration, health insurance, or pension procedures

→ Can cause delays in receiving insurance cards or pension payments.

These are typical “sequence errors” that lead to unnecessary stress and expenses.

The Role of KikokuPro

The Bridge Between You and the Experts

Attorneys, tax accountants, real estate agents, administrative scriveners, healthcare and senior-care specialists - we connect you only with the right professionals at the right time, eliminating inefficiencies.

Identify Hidden Issues

Experienced KikokuPro coordinators identify hidden issues that clients often overlook.

While each expert will accurately answer your technical questions, we help you ask the right questions - from your perspective - to get the most out of every consultation.

Guidance That Keeps You Moving Forward

You make the decisions - we prepare the path.

Our role is to structure the process so you can focus on what truly matters.

The Next Step

Each individual's situation and preferences are unique.

- Family composition - single, couple, or with children
- Are you hoping to return soon, or taking a few years to plan carefully?
- Your base of support in Japan - relatives, friends, or community ties
- Urban lifestyle or countryside living?
- Will you maintain work, a business, or assets in the U.S.?
- Might you return to the U.S. in the future?

A single factor can completely change the right order of preparation - and which experts you'll truly need.

Because every case is unique, a personalized and logical plan
- your Action Map - is essential.
